

MONTEREY INSTITUTE

MONTEREY INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

An affiliate of Middlebury College

Graduate School of International Policy Studies <http://.policy.miis.edu>

Job Listserves

MIIS pays for subscriptions to several internationally oriented job posting services, which include environmental positions, among many others. All Environment Specific jobs will be posted on the "IEP Information" conference on the First Class email system. Alumni may contact us directly for more information. Many of the job openings will be for the organizations listed under the "Environmental Websites" list below. Here are a few websites, please contact GSIPScareers@miis.edu if you spot an error or want to add more information!

<http://www.internationaljobs.org/>

International Careers Employment Weekly – Career Services will post a copy of this in PDF format when each issue comes out – every 2 weeks.

<http://www.devnetjobs.org/>

Development, NGO, and Environmental Sector Positions, updated constantly

<http://www.alertnet.org/thepeople/jobs/index.htm>

Reuter's Alertnet.org. Many Relief and Development jobs here.

<http://www.oceancareers.com/2.0/index.php>

This web site will provides current information on career opportunities, the knowledge and skills required to enter these careers, where students can gain the necessary education, employers who hire people to work in these careers, and much more.

A first step would be to do a Google Search. Click here to begin.

ENVIRONMENT WEBSITES

<http://www.iisd.ca/>

The International Institute for Sustainable Development – Reporting Services Division – provides a variety of multimedia informational resources for environment and sustainable development policymakers, including daily coverage of international negotiations, analyses and photos. The various products provided by IISD RS make it an essential source of information for government officials, policy and decision makers, UN staff, non-governmental organizations, intergovernmental organizations, business, industry and academia.

<http://www.ofrf.org/>

The Organic Farming Research Foundation is a non-profit whose mission is to sponsor research related to organic farming practices, to disseminate research results to organic farmers and to growers interested in adopting organic production systems, and to educate the public and decision-makers about organic farming issues.

<http://www.thesca.org/>

Student Conservation Association's conservation career site lists relevant career positions in a range of science, research and environmental fields. [subscription required]

<http://www.ecsp.si.edu/links.htm>

This is the Environmental Change and Security Project. It offers job information, as well as many, many related links that could be valuable resources.

<http://www.worldrevolution.org>

This is an environmental site with general information on four key areas: water, pollution, public works and solid waste. These links can lead to news, articles and conferences about the above topics and allows you to look up environmental companies or products.

<http://www.epa.gov>

This is the Environmental Protection Agency's internship site. It provides information on various student internships, fellowships and research opportunities in the EPA or the government. Allows you to search by region.

<http://www.nrep.org>

Offering professional registration and certification to qualified environmental managers, scientists, engineers, auditors and technicians. There is also information on workshops and job listings.

<http://www.nwf.org/careergateway/index.cfm>

National Wildlife Federation's Job Opportunities. Internships and job listings for administrative, skilled labor and executive positions at the nation's largest environmental organization.

<http://www.greenbiz.com>

Job and resume posting service for environmental professionals and recent graduates.

<http://envirolink.org>

EnviroLink is a non-profit organization of a grassroots online community that unites hundreds of organizations and volunteers around the world with millions of people in over 130 countries. EnviroLink provides you with the most comprehensive, up-to-date environmental resources available and offers a library service.

<http://www.attra.org/attra-ri/internsuppl.html>

This organization offers internships in areas of sustainable farming

<http://www.marinecareers.net>

Announces a wide range of marine career field job listings.

<http://www.cyber-sierra.com/nrjobs/index.html>

Cyber-Sierra's Natural Resources Job Search provides services to find a job in forestry, wildlife, watershed and other natural resource fields. The site is well organized so searches can be done on a national or international level, for summer or long-term, as well as in particular fields.

<http://www.cnie.org>

The National Library for the Environment is a tremendous resource of environmental information, including jobs, conferences, laws, journals and other virtual library sites.

<http://www.environmental-jobs.com>

Environmental Careers World Online provides information on career news, inside tips and advice, employer interviews, career research and comprehensive job listings.

<http://www.eco.org/#top>

The Environmental Careers Organization site provides searches paid environmental internships, career services, career publications, placement services and news on environmental career trends. This site is well-organized and easy to use.

<http://www.usaid.gov/>

This is the site for the US Agency for International Development (USAID) which offers a plethora of information about development, economics, humanitarian issues and the environment. It also offers a directory and a search mechanism which can show you employment opportunities. A very informational site.

<http://gis.ucsc.edu>

This is the site for the Geographic Information Systems and Interdisciplinary Science Computation. It offers many helpful links to GIS and ISC related projects and sites, as well as NASA-Ames projects. It also provides job and internship opportunities.

<http://www.webdirectory.com>

This is a good site which offers over 20 links to environmental employment and internship sites. The main Webdirectory site has the world's largest environmental search engine.

<http://www.iisd.org/default.asp>

International Institute for Sustainable Development, Canada

<http://www.ecojobs.com>

Environmental Careers Opportunities.

Subscription site (GSIPS career office, Leah Gowron, subscribes!) offers info on about 700 current job vacancies in the env'l field, from employers in advocacy, national non-profits, corporations, private firms, institutions, and Federal, State, and local governments. Both national and international jobs available.

<http://www.pcl.org>

Planning and Conservation League PCL is a nonprofit organization dedicated to protecting California's environment through public education, policy research, and legislation. The site provides information on California's environmental issues, news, legislation, etc. Job opportunities are also listed on the site.

<http://www.solenergy.org>

This site provides a good resource for solar and renewable energy, along with an online education program.

<http://www.crest.org/index.html>

Valuable resource for information on renewable energy

<http://www.marinetech.org>

This is a list of internships in Marine Advanced Technology. Some are even paid!!

<http://www.iclei.org>

This site offers information on employment and internships, as well as a list of links.

<http://www.epri.com>

Electric Power Research Institute. Has a large list of employment within this organization.

<http://www.csis.org/>

Center for Strategic and International Studies. Offers employment and internship opportunities in the area of Energy and Climate.

<http://www.solarenergy.org>

List jobs, conferences, education opportunities and links to other valuable sites.

<http://www.eia.doe.gov>

Resource for researching specific topics

<http://environment.about.com/newsissues/environment/cs/jobs/index.htm>

List jobs and internships from 10 leading environmental organization

<http://www.mcbi.org>

Marine Conservation Biology Institute, MCBI is a non-profit organization dedicated to safeguarding life in the sea by advancing the multi-disciplinary science of marine conservation biology. The site provides environmental news, MCBI-sponsored symposium and workshops info, and other sources of info on marine conservation biology topics. Job and internship opportunities also listed.

<http://www.edf.org>

Environmental Defense Organization. Offers both job listings and other resources.

<http://www.aslo.org>

American Society of Limnology & Oceanography, ASLO is an organization promoting the interests of limnology, oceanography and related sciences, to foster the exchange of info across the range of aquatic science. The site includes info on meetings, events, articles, and more. Job opportunities listed.

<http://www.eceajobs.com/>

Environmental career bulletin; professional job listings, online resume and applications; both domestic and international (not frequently updated)

<http://www.earthisland.org>

info, job postings; internships and volunteer opportunities. Well organized site, with good links to env'l orgs, programs, and projects. Based in San Francisco.

<http://www.fisheries.org>

American Fisheries Society jobs bulletin with student opportunities, short-term jobs, internships, and lots of PhD positions advertised, usually ocean related. Many links; very useful.

<http://www.conservefish.org>

A communication network hosted by the Marine Fish Conservation Network.

<http://www.tpl.org>

The Trust for Public Land offers various job openings throughout the country.

<http://www.eelink.net>

A conglomeration of environmental categories, including student grants, job vacancies and other environmental organizations.

<http://www.ecoemploy.com/>

<http://www.ercweb.com>

<http://www.envirolink.org/>

www.earthwatch.org

The mission of the Earthwatch Institute is to promote sustainable conservation of our natural resources and cultural heritage by creating partnerships between scientists, educators and the general public.

www.oceanic-society.org

The Oceanic Society's primary mission is to protect marine wildlife worldwide through an integrated program of scientific research, environmental education and volunteerism. Our environmental approach is to collaborate with local communities in conservation initiatives, and to promote sustainable economies as an alternative to those that are destructive to wildlife and natural habitats.

www.sierraclub.org

The Sierra Club is a grassroots environmental advocacy organization.

www.earthshare.com

Earth Share, a federation of America's leading non-profit environmental and conservation organizations, works to promote environmental education and charitable giving through workplace giving campaigns. Earth Share is an opportunity, a system, and an answer for environmentally conscious employees and workplaces to support dozens of environmental groups at once through a charitable giving drive.